

Andrzej Duszenko, Ph.D.

Professor of English

Northern State University

Education:

1975-79: M.A., English, University of Wrocław, Wrocław, Poland. Major field of concentration: British Literature.

1982-88: Ph.D., English, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, IL. Major field of concentration: Modern British Literature.

Dissertation: "The Joyce of Science: New Physics in Finnegans Wake." The dissertation traces the influence of the theory of relativity and quantum mechanics on Joyce's last work. Dissertation director: Richard F. Peterson.

Languages: Polish; reading knowledge of French, Spanish, Portuguese, Russian, Latin.

Employment:

1982-88: Graduate Assistant, Southern Illinois University, Carbondale, IL.

1989-94: Assistant Professor, Northern State University, Aberdeen, SD.

1989-96: Director, Writing Center, Northern State University, Aberdeen, SD.

1994-98: Associate Professor, Northern State University, Aberdeen, SD.

1999-present: Professor, Northern State University, Aberdeen, SD.

Professional

interests: Modern British literature, physics and philosophy, literary translation, web design, information technology.

Other

interests: Classical music and sound reproduction, film, photography, tennis.